N-1 Technologies, LLC Acquires Data Security and Compliance Business from QSGI, Inc.

WESTCHESTER, ILLINOIS – October 1, 2009. On September 23, 2009, N-1 Technologies, LLC (N-1) acquired the Data Security and Compliance business of QSGI, Inc. N-1 Technologies, a Chicago based, independent equipment-management company, has broadened both our range of services as well as our client coverage area through a strategic acquisition plan. N-1's focus is providing value added services to corporations as they acquire, fund, manage and dispose of high tech assets. This acquisition further strengthens N-1's commitment to assist its clients in reducing the total cost of ownership and maximizing the return on their IT investments. N-1 continues to pursue ways to enhance our ability to help corporations better manage hardware assets and build best practices for data security and assure regulatory compliance

Our management team boasts over 150 years of collective IT industry experience specifically focused on asset management services. Our Asset Management team has managed over $5 billion in IT assets over the past 30 years. Our company's core strength lies in its extensive knowledge of data center and distributed equipment lifecycles and their respective secondary markets. Our team continually monitors all IT equipment markets in order to bring unique solutions to value, structure, source and dispose of technology assets in a timely and cost effective manner.

N-1 Technologies is grateful for the opportunity to demonstrate the effects that our services can have on your company's bottom line. We are confident that our unique blend of financial and technical market expertise will bring value as you face the dynamic challenges within Information Technology. Our team is committed to serving the wide range of needs surrounding IT professionals and has continually proven to be an invaluable extension to our customer's technology staffs.

We want to emphasize that this acquisition has added strength to an already strong IT asset management organization. The assets acquired fit perfectly within our suite of services and we are able to deliver our services with enhanced value immediately.

I look forward to discussing how we at N-1 can provide solutions to meet the challenges your company faces in Information Technology.

Regards,

Paul Mayor
